Managers Memo (Agenda item 2):

Are you interested in making Concord a better place to live and work? Are you a bicycle commuter or a bicycling enthusiast? Do you often walk to where you're going or just for enjoyment? Maybe you're a bus rider and/or have some ideas on how to improve CAT bus service.

TPAC, Concord's Transportation Policy Advisory Committee, and each of its subcommittees (bicycle, pedestrian and public transportation), are looking for people just like you. You don't need to be an engineer or a planner or have any particular kind of expertise. The only requirements are an open mind, a cooperative spirit and a desire to help make Concord even more awesome than it already is.

TPAC is charged with advising the City Council on all transportation matters, and its subcommittees are contently working on interesting projects for the betterment of the community.

To learn more about what TPAC does or to volunteer to be part of this important work, please call (insert phone) or email (insert address) Rob Mack. Let him know what your interests are and he will put you in touch with someone you can talk to.

Intro to biking for the TPAC Bicycling page (Agenda item 6)

Here's a start....

Imagine a community where streets are as safe for bicyclists and pedestrians as they are for those in motor vehicles. A community where bike lanes and sidewalks allow you to easily get to your destination; a vibrant and healthy community. This is what we envision for Concord, and the TPAC bike and pedestrian committees are committed to working to achieve this vision.
